This conference is to be held in the beautiful surroundings of Cape Town, South Africa, from 1 to 4 April 1997. The aim is to provide a forum for discussing the development and applications of bioinorganic chemistry with an emphasis on improving the quality of mankind's existence.

Scientific Programme

The scientific programme comprising lectures and posters will include contributions from prominent international researchers. Themes will include metal-containing drugs, radiopharmaceuticals, toxicology, biologically active chelates and macrocycles, metallo-proteins and enzymes, biominerals and new materials, biotechnology and environmental applications.

Language

In the interests of ensuring free exchange of information and ideas, the proceedings will be conducted in English. Regrettably, no translation facilities will be available.

Venue

Greater Cape Town hosts a population of 2.5 million people and its spectacular harbours are regarded as the gateway to Africa. The sites of the older harbours accommodate the newly constructed Victoria and Albert Waterfront, a popular delight for both tourists and local people. The Majestic Table Mountain forms a backdrop to down-town Cape Town, which is situated at the northern end of the scenic Cape Peninsula. The western and eastern coasts of the Peninsula abound with attractive beaches located on both the colder Atlantic and the warmer Indian Ocean shores. Some 50 km distant lies the picturesque wine-producing town of Stellenbosch nestling against the slopes of the Jonkershoek mountains.

Social Events

A variety of Social Events and tours will be organised for delegates and accompanying persons. These events will be designed to maximise informal contact between participants as well as to introduce them to the traditional Cape cuisine and wines.

Second circular

If you would like to receive the second circular, which will contain details regarding the scientific and social programmes as well as accommodation, please complete and return the reply form to
